

Criteria: Create documents with an awareness of expectations of “real world” discourse communities

Project: *The Mochila Review, vol. 14*

Course: ENG 395: Mochila Review

Assignment Criteria: In this class students read/viewed submissions (poems, stories, photos, etc.) and chose which ones would be featured in Missouri Western’s national publication. As part of the staff, I also typeset the entire book before publishing.

Audience: Mochila is a yearly publication that Missouri Western provides. It is read by students, faculty, alumni, people from the literary community from anywhere in the United States.

My Contribution: I read and helped select pieces I thought were suitable for the publication. I helped to copy edit the pieces, and I typeset all the text/art.

Publication History: This publication is available to anyone via print for a fee of $10 (new) or $7 (used).

Reworking of Publications: I have not visited this document for about a year. Since it has already been published, and since I am not in the class or among the staff anymore, I can no longer distribute an edited version. However, when I read it, I still find grammar/spelling errors that I wish I could fix.
